THINGS TO KNOW

NIKKI M MASCALI, REPORTER

I read "The Handmaid's Tale" as a teen and clearly remember being unnerved by its world — and seeing it brought to life in the Hulu smash hit was just as chilling. Many feel the show is a glimpse into a society that could be ahead of us under the current administration, and protesters clad in "Handmaid"-inspired garb convened in Lower Manhattan yesterday to show Vice President Mike Pence they will not accept that fictional world as a reality. See photos and learn more about the protest on pages 4-5 or at metro.us.

WELCOME TO
METRO.USUS JUDGE HALTS 3-D
PRINTED GUN BLUEPRINTS

A U.S. judge on Tuesday blocked the planned release of 3-D printed gun blueprints hours before they were set to hit the internet, siding with states that sued to halt publication of designs to make weapons that security screening may not detect. U.S. District Judge Robert Lasnik in Seattle said the blueprints' publication could cause irreparable harm to U.S. citizens. The decision blocked a settlement President Donald Trump's administration had reached with a Texas-based company, which initially said it planned to put files online on Wednesday. Gun control proponents are concerned the weapons made from 3-D printers are untraceable, undetectable "ghost" firearms that pose a threat to global security. Some gun rights groups say the technology is expensive, the guns are unreliable and the threat is being overblown. Josh Blackman, a lawyer for the company Defense Distributed, said during Tuesday's hearing that blueprints had already been uploaded to the firm's website on Friday. The publication of those files is now illegal under federal law, Lasnik said.

MAY TAKE DECADES TO ID
REMAINS FROM N. KOREA

When the remains of Americans handed over by North Korea arrive in Hawaii on Wednesday, the U.S. military will begin a painstaking identification process that experts said could take from three days to two decades to complete. The 55 boxes, draped in the blue and white flag of the United Nations, are each small enough to be carried in one person's arms. They bear not only the remains thought to be of missing servicemen from the 1950-53 Korean War, but also a message of good faith made by North Korean leader

Kim Jong Un at his summit with President Donald Trump in June. The remains within each box may not be those of a single person and are likely fragments of bones, said Paul Cole, an expert on recovery of soldiers missing in action and prisoners of war, who worked as a visiting scientific fellow at Hawaii's Central Identification Laboratory where the boxes will land. The commingling of remains reflects the violent impacts to which human beings are subjected in war. At the laboratory, work will be done to determine if the remains are human.

NYC DRIVERS RALLY IN SUPPORT OF RESTRICTING LICENSES OF FOR-HIRE VEHICLES

Councilman Brad Lander (D-Brooklyn) speaks at a rally in front of City Hall in support of a proposed City Council vote on a 12-month cap of For Hire Vehicles (FHV's) in Manhattan on Wednesday in New York City. After a significant increase in local traffic and a spate of suicides by professional drivers, New York City is planning to vote on capping ride-sharing services such as Uber and Lyft. The City Council's move to vote on the measures could come as soon as August 8. If the vote were to succeed, New York City would become the first major U.S. municipality to limit ride-sharing services.

AT LEAST 85 INJURED
IN AEROMEXICO CRASH

About 85 people were injured on Tuesday, some seriously, when an Aeromexico-operated Embraer passenger jet crashed just after takeoff in Mexico's state of Durango, but authorities said there were no fatalities. The operator of Durango airport, Grupo Aeroportuario Centro Norte, attributed the crash to bad weather conditions, citing preliminary reports. The mid-sized jet was almost full, with 97 passengers and four crew members aboard, when it came down at around 4 p.m. local time, Gerardo Ruiz Esparza, Mexico's minister for communications and transportation, wrote on Twitter. "The plane was taking off," Governor Jose Rosas Aispuro told Mexican television, adding that witnesses told him there was "a bang" and then without warning the plane was on the ground. TV images showed the severely damaged body of the plane emerging from scrubland and a column of smoke rising into the sky. The plane made an emergency landing about six miles from the airport shortly after taking off, Alejandro Cardoza, a spokesman for the state's civil protection agency, said on local television.

FACEBOOK: MORE MED-
DLING BEFORE MIDTERMS

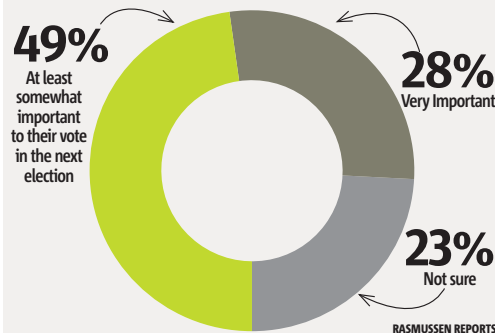

Facebook Inc. said on Tuesday it had identified a new coordinated political influence campaign to mislead its users and sow dissension among voters ahead of November's U.S. congressional elections. It said it had removed 32 pages and accounts from Facebook and Instagram, part of an effort to combat foreign meddling in U.S. elections. The company stopped short of identifying the source of the misinformation. But members of Congress who had been briefed by Facebook on the matter said the methodology of the influence campaign suggested Russian involvement. "I can say I think with pretty high confidence I think this is Russian-related," Senator Mark Warner, the top Democrat on the Senate Intelligence Committee, told reporters at the U.S. Capitol. Two U.S. intelligence officials told Reuters there was not sufficient evidence to conclude that Russia was behind the Facebook campaign, but one noted that "the similarities, aims and methodology relative to the 2016 Russian campaign are quite striking."

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

“Don’t Get ANY Surgery Until You See This...”

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It’s Best “Treatment Formula” For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going to be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it’s complex. In other words, it’s not a simple, easy fix.

But I’m sure you already know that. Or you wouldn’t be reading this.

That’s the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It’s amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

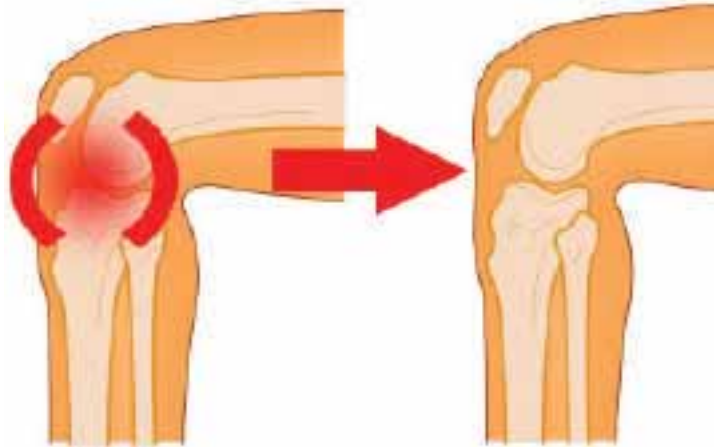

While I can’t give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD “Treatment Formula” A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW...

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these “gel injections” without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patient. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here’s What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our “Treatment Formula.”

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what’s going on and what is your best course of action... step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what’s going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I’m out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Manhattan demonstrators protest the 'real-life' 'Handmaid's Tale' of VP "Mike Pence is bringing the real-life 'Handmaid's Tale' to America," said Emma Kaplan, an organizer of Tuesday's demonstration in Bowling Green.

Dozens of protesters wearing attire inspired by "The Handmaid's Tale" united in Lower Manhattan on Tuesday to show Vice President Mike Pence they will not allow Gilead, the hit show's dystopian world, to become a reality.

"Mike Pence is bringing the real-life 'Handmaid's Tale' to America," said Emma Kaplan of Refuse Fascism, the activist group that organized the demonstration.

Red-clad protesters convened outside the Alexander Hamilton U.S. Custom House in Bowling Green, where Pence was attending the Department of Homeland Security's (DHS) National Cybersecurity Summit with DHS Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen and others.

Among those protesting Pence's visit that donned the red cape and white bonnet of a handmaid was Therese Patricia Okoumou, the woman who was arrested for climbing the Statue of Liberty on the 4th of July to protest ICE.

"I want the world to know I was an activist before July 4th, and I am doing naturally what we should do," Okoumou told Metro. "I feel very empowered. Shame on Nielsen and Pence for supporting this cruel and inhumane administration."

Sarah Bardin, a protester from Manhattan, hoped the "Handmaid's Tale"-inspired demonstration, which included a silent and solemn procession across Bowling Green, "draws attention to family separation, especially those children yet to be reunited with their families, a lot of them are in New York City."

To take that further, once the "handmaids" reached the front of the Custom House, now home to the National Museum of the American Indian, they placed children's shoes before them to raise awareness for the more than 2,000 immigrant children who have been separated from their families at the southern border.

The protesters then ceremoniously tore their cloaks and garb off and tossed them near the shoes before shouting, "The Trump version of Gilead is not a world we're going to accept."

Frustrated commuters act out 'excruciatingly slow' bus speeds at City Hall

Activists proposed a plan for MTA improvements, which includes 100 new miles of lanes in the next five years.

KRISTIN TOUSSAINT
kristin.toussaint@metro.us

New York City may be fast-paced, but some of its buses are not.

On Tuesday, transit advocates urged officials to speed up MTA buses by bringing the typical frustrating New Yorker morning commute, experienced by transit riders across all boroughs, to the steps of City Hall.

York Public Interest Research Group Straphangers Campaign, TransitCenter and Tri-State Transportation Campaign, along with MTA bus riders and elected officials gathered at City Hall on Tuesday to act out a scene showcasing the struggles they face when trying to get to work or school on time via city buses.

In front of City Hall, a mock-up foam-board bus was blocked from moving forward along its route by Little Tykes cars. Riders waited impatiently at a bus stop ahead, reliving the reality for many who are kept waiting for their buses every day.

"Each day, over a million New Yorkers are subjected to excruciatingly slow bus speeds, endless delays and meandering routes that don't get them where they need to go, when they need to go," Comptroller Scott Stringer said in a statement. "New Yorkers deserve a modern transit network — and that includes our bus system."

Transit activists argue that bus riders have to endure some of the worst commutes in New York City, and this causes real damage, limiting access to jobs and time at home with family. The bus system also predominantly affects those who are lower income, people of color (who make up 75 percent of city bus riders) and immigrants (who make up 55 percent of riders), activists say.

Reducing your ecological footprint through safe sex

There are countless very good reasons to practice safe sex, but Earth Overshoot Day — today — will focus on how safe sex can reduce your ecological footprint. The Center for Biological Diversity and Global Footprint Network will distribute more than 10,000 free endangered-species condoms in 10 U.S. cities with the largest carbon footprint to encourage Americans to have safe sex.

The vibrant, special-edition condoms — featuring the slogan “Before your seduction, think footprint reduction” — will be distributed in New York City; Philadelphia; Los Angeles; Chicago; Miami; Dallas; Detroit; Houston; San Jose, California; and Washington.

“As human population continues to rapidly grow, we clear-cut trees, burn fossil fuels and bulldoze wild spaces. The Earth can't keep up,” said Sarah Baillie, the center's Endangered Species Condoms coordinator. “We see evidence of this in shrinking habitat, the global climate crisis and crashes in wildlife populations. We're blowing through nature's capital, and wildlife and the planet are suffering for it.”

According to the Center for Biological Diversity, Earth Overshoot Day is “the day humanity exhausts the resources the planet can replenish in a year.” As if that's not scary enough, with this year's day falling on Aug. 1, it's “five months too soon — and the earliest since the world first went into ecological overshoot.”

US prosecutors tell jury ex-Trump campaign chief Manafort hid wealth

Trump's former top aide allegedly hid much of $60 million earned in Ukraine.

U.S. prosecutors on Tuesday portrayed President Donald Trump's one-time campaign chairman Paul Manafort as someone who hid his wealth from political work in Ukraine, as the first trial began arising from an investigation of Russia's interference in the 2016 U.S. election.

Manafort felt tax and banking laws did not apply to him, a prosecutor said in the government's opening statement, telling the Virginia federal court jury he opened more than 30 bank accounts in three foreign countries to "receive and hide" income.

A defense lawyer painted a drastically different portrait of Manafort and made clear he will go after one of the government's star witnesses, former Manafort associate Rick Gates. Gates pleaded guilty in February to conspiring against the United States and lying to investigators and agreed to cooperate with the investigation.

"This case is about taxes and trust," Manafort's attorney Thomas Zehnle told jurors in his opening statement. "His trust in Rick Gates was misplaced," Zehnle said, accusing Gates of embezzling millions of dollars from Manafort.

He asked Manafort to stand up and face the jury, calling him "a good man" and a talented political consultant.

Manafort has pleaded not guilty to all 18 criminal counts, which center on allegations that he hid much of the $60 million he earned in Ukraine in undisclosed overseas bank accounts and failed to pay taxes on it.

"A man in this courtroom believed the law did not apply to him. Not tax, not banking law," said prosecutor Uzo Asonye, a member of U.S. Special Counsel Robert Mueller's team looking at Russian election meddling and whether any Trump campaign members coordinated with Moscow officials.

The government's first witness following opening statements was Tad Devine, who recalled his work with Manafort in Ukraine to help pro-Russian political figure Viktor Yanukovich.

"It was a really incredible operation," Devine said of Manafort's work for Yanukovich, who became Ukraine's president in 2010, was removed from power four years later and lives in exile in Russia.

A Manafort conviction would give momentum to Mueller, who has indicted or secured guilty pleas from 32 people and three companies since the probe started 14 months ago. An acquittal would support efforts by Trump and his allies to portray the investigation as a "witch hunt."

Trump denies any campaign collusion with Russia, and on Tuesday tried to make the case publicly that collusion would not be a crime anyway.

Prosecutors have said they will not present evidence of collusion at this trial. The charges against Manafort largely pre-date his five months of work for the Trump campaign, some of them as campaign chairman.

Trump has vacillated between showing sympathy for Manafort and trying to distance himself. Manafort attended a June 2016 Trump Tower meeting with Russians that is a focal point of Mueller's probe.

Yes, there's such a thing as beer ice cream sandwiches

Melt Bakery is offering them until Thursday.

SAM BRODSKY
Samantha.Brodsky@metro.us

If there's one thing better than ooey-goey chocolate chip cookies paired with scoops of soft serve — dough à la mode, if you will — it's a good ice cream sandwich. Melt Bakery is upping the ante with a boozy dessert New Yorkers can enjoy for a limited time: beer ice cream sandwiches.

To celebrate the newly released Sam '76 brew (4.7% ABV) from Samuel Adams, NYC's Melt Bakery — known for their Lovelet and Cinnamax sandwiches — created The '76er ice cream sandwich.

The '76er is composed of Sam '76 infused ice cream bookended by two honey roasted peanut cookies. It's described as the "perfect refreshing dessert for a hot day" (or lunch break).

According to the Melt Bakery website, these sandwiches cost $5 a piece — and you don't need to be of drinking age to enjoy them. A Samuel Adams rep told Elite Daily that most of the alcohol content in the beer ice cream is cooked down.

A Melt Bakery representative confirmed this to Metro, saying, "During the process of creating the ice cream for the sandwiches, they heat the beer and draw out the flavors and through that process the alcohol is cooked down." However, it still has that Samuel Adams taste.

These beer ice cream sandwiches will be available at Melt's Lower East Side location (132 Orchard St.) until Thursday, which happens to be National Ice Cream Sandwich Day.

Melt Bakery's first batch sold out, and they're in the process of meeting demand. So, go get your fix while you still can.

Next time, maybe Melt will come back with a batch that takes advantage of this new beer ice cream bill. Who wouldn't want to get their hands on a childhood classic with an adult twist? Cider Chipwiches, anyone?

According to the Melt Bakery website, these sandwiches cost $5 a piece — and you don't need to be of drinking age to enjoy them.

Are beer ice cream sandwiches legal in the state? Actually yes.

Wine ice cream has been legal in New York since 2008 (and you can go to Topsy Scoop for that). In early July, Gov. Andrew Cuomo signed a bill legalizing the sale of ice cream made with beer and hard cider.

"Both the dairy and craft beer/cider industries are key contributors to our agriculture economy," Sen. James L. Seward, who sponsored the bill, said in a statement at the time.

Seward went on to say that legalizing beer ice cream allows the state to "capitalize on homegrown New York ingredients with the creation of a cool new, innovative product."

Beer ice cream is permitted to contain up to 5 percent of alcohol by volume (ABV).

WE'RE WALKING HERE!
I'm writing in reply to Larry Adel's Grumble regarding pedestrians inconsideration in crosswalks. I work in Traffic Violations and it's not a great idea to suggest that the pedestrians stop and allow cars to pass as this can (and usually does) end in a ticket to the driver which can affect and mess up their insurance among other things!

We received a Grumble recently from a driver who was sick of pedestrians not sharing the road. Well, today some "Walking Grumblers" shot back.

READER WRITE-INS:

IN DEFENSE OF PEDESTRIANS

What nerve of the Grumble writer complaining about pedestrians! Listen, mister, if you could have made the turn before the light turned red you wouldn't have been in the crosswalk, and if you couldn't make the light you should have stopped before then. Ever hear of gridlock? Why should pedestrians give in to your bullying to get through the crosswalk when we have the light and the right of way? You're sitting there in your nice comfortable heating or air-conditioning while we're on foot struggling with other pedestrians, the weather and the danger of getting run over by people like you and WE should give YOU a break? Get real.

Aries Emotions will rise to the surface. Use your energy wisely and put your ideas in motion. Taking charge will help you surpass any competition.

Taurus Be careful when making personal or professional changes. Upsetting someone unintentionally will cause difficulties trying to finish what you start. Get the go-ahead before a project.

Gemini Deal with matters concerning a friend, relative or peer. Sending a clear message will help you avoid being emotionally manipulated or backed into a corner.

Cancer Feel your way through a situation that could disrupt your job or domestic life. Knowing what you are up against will help you make wise choices. Romance is encouraged.

Leo Look for unique ways to improve your quality of life without taking drastic measures or overspending. If you're willing to do the work yourself, you'll get good results.

Virgo Look for the most practical way to move forward. Listen to alternative ideas and consider how to best use what you have at your disposal to add greater stability to your life.

Libra Emotional limitations will stand in your way if you let your personal and professional lives overlap. Don't fold under pressure. Size up situations and use your intelligence to overcome adversity.

Scorpio Don't worry about what others say. Use your skills, knowledge and experience to further a cause you believe in. Don't feel challenged when you should feel invincible.

Sagittarius Turn up the volume and dance to the beat of your own drum. Propose what you want to see happen, do your own thing and take credit where credit is due.

Capricorn Develop the changes you want to implement at home or work. Aim to boost your income and raise your standard of living. Share your ideas and nurture an important relationship.

Aquarius Take action, but don't go overboard. Keeping the peace and living within your means will be key to getting what you want without going into battle. Use your energy wisely.

Play in the middle of the street

For three days this month, one of New York City's busiest streets belongs to the people again. The Department of Transportation's wildly popular Summer Streets program shuts down Park Avenue from the Brooklyn Bridge to East 72nd Street to car traffic and turns it into a 7-mile block party with free entertainment, crafting, a zipline, an agility course for pups and tons more. Aug. 4, 11, 18; 7 a.m.-1 p.m., free, nyc.gov

Pair unlimited wine with desserts

If an outdoor wine and dessert festival isn't peak summer, we don't know what is. Get to the LIC Flea & Food market in Queens for a whole weekend of more than 20 dessert vendors paired with curated bottomless wines at the Wine & Sweets Fest. Entry is free, but you'll need a ticket for unlimited wine (desserts are pay-as-you-go). Aug. 4-5, $39, licflea.com

Lock down 2-for-1 Broadway tickets

The summer edition of Broadway Week 2018 isn't until September, but if you wait that long to get tickets you'll miss out on the hottest shows. Reservations open Aug. 15 when you can score two-for-one tickets to what is always a choice lineup of shows, both new productions and ones you've been meaning to see forever. nycgo.com

Crown New York City's best burger

Timeout's annual Battle of the Burger is always a great time. Come hungry as New York's best burger places take over LIC Landing for a massive cookout to vie for the title of champion of the grill. Attendees get unlimited burger tastings and Budweiser, plus music and games. Aug. 16, must be 21+, $55-$75, eventbrite.com

Truly avant-garde theater in the park

Torn Out Theater challenges us to be radical in our body positivity by tackling the politics of nudity with each of their shows. After starting out with Shakespeare's The Tempest two summers ago, this year they've gone with The Rover, a play that explores sex work, to be performed in Prospect Park. Select days and times between Aug. 16-26, free, tornouttheater.org

Netflix's 'Like Father' is the perfect dramedy

Director Lauren Miller Rogen opens up about the new flick, working with her famous hubby and more.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

Never has the word dramedy been more applicably used than to describe "Like Father." Just as amusing as it is dramatic and poignant, the latest Netflix release sees Kristen Bell play an overworked businesswoman who is left at the altar, while Kelsey Grammer is her estranged father who picks the ceremony to reunite.

The next day over several shots of whiskey, the pair comes to terms, only for Bell's Rachel to drunkenly invite her pops on her honeymoon cruise, a decision she instantly regrets.

We chatted with

Kelsey Grammer and Kristen Bell star in "Like Father." NETFLIX

director Lauren Miller Rogen about the film and working with her husband, Seth Rogen.

What were your influences when you wrote the film?
I love Alexander Payne.

"The Descendants" is a really inspiring movie for this. Perhaps not quite as comedic as "Like Father" is. Nicole Holofcener makes movies that are very inspiring to me. I always feel like she creates these very real women that feel three-dimensional and are so relatable. "Parenthood" is a movie that has always influenced me greatly as a writer. I feel like it is such a dramedy. It is such a funny movie, but damn is it sad and emotional.

Talk about working with Kristen Bell and Kelsey Grammer. Whom did you cast first?

It was actually Kelsey first. It is a funny story. I think I had finished the script and I was just starting to send it around a little bit. And they were shooting "Neighbors 2," which

"He was so unbelievably funny that I immediately pictured him as Harry."

On Kelsey Grammer

Kelsey actually has a small part in. He plays Chloe Moretz's dad. And I didn't meet him, but I was on set the day he shot his scenes. And he was so unbelievably funny that I immediately pictured him as Harry.

Kelsey was on board first, and then with Kristen, we have a mutual friend. We kind-of sort-of knew each other, but not really. So we sent the script to her and I told my friend to tell her that I am a normal human being, so she should read it. I had seen her be funny and be dramatic, but not something quite like this before. So I wasn't quite so sure. But from the moment we were sat down I could tell that she was just perfection across the board.

How was working with Seth? What was the best piece of advice he gave you?

It was fantastic. When I made my first movie, "For a Good Time Call," which I did not direct, he gave me the best advice, which is: "Whether you are the lead actor, the director, or even the producer your first job on set is to be in a good mood. It is to show everyone that there is no place else you would rather be." That's something I always tried to remember. But the truth is I worked really hard to get there, so I should be happy to get there.

"Like Father" premieres on Netflix on Aug. 3.

What the Yankees are getting with Lance Lynn

The Yankees were quiet on deadline day, the veteran pitcher proving to be their last big move on Monday night.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The New York Yankees continued to address areas of concern prior to Tuesday's trade deadline by acquiring veteran right-handed starting pitcher Lance Lynn from the Minnesota Twins for first baseman Tyler Austin and pitching prospect Luis Rijo.

The necessity to make a move for at least one more starting pitcher continued to become abundantly clear since New York picked up veteran southpaw J.A. Happ from the Toronto Blue Jays last week.

While Happ had an impressive debut for the team on Sunday, he wasn't going to bolster the questionable rotation by himself. The workload on Luis Severino has taken a clear toll on his production. After looking like a Cy Young candidate through 18 starts, (13-2, 1.98 ERA), Severino has posted an 8.84 ERA over his last four starts.

C.C. Sabathia and Masahiro Tanaka have battled inconsistencies and injuries as of late while Sonny Gray has been a liability at times, especially while pitching at home in Yankee Stadium.

Instead of calling up a young pitcher, the Yankees are sending a clear message that they are going for it now with the acquisition of these veterans.

Lynn won a World Series during his rookie year with the St. Louis Cardinals in 2011 where he developed into a top-of-the-rotation arm. In seven years in St. Louis, which included an All-Star appearance and the cancellation of his 2016 campaign after undergoing Tommy John surgery, he went 79-55 with a respectable 3.38 ERA.

It earned him a one-year, $12 million deal with the Twins prior to the 2018 season, though the transition to American League baseball has been a difficult one for him. In 20 starts, he's posted a 5-7 record with a 5.10 ERA.

Despite the struggles,

Lynn has plenty of play-off experience to add to the Yankees rotation. He's appeared in 24 postseason games in seven years, posting a 5-4 record and 4.50 ERA in 52.0 innings.

It isn't a sterling mark, but he's allowed two earned runs or fewer in six of his last seven postseason appearances.

Still, there are always concerns about a pitcher coming into a hitter's ballpark like Yankee Stadium whose ERA is trending on the high side. Lynn though is a predominantly ground-ball pitcher as more than half of the balls put in play against him are hit on the ground.

If he's able to cut down on a career-worst 5.45 walks-per-nine-innings rate, he'll be more than serviceable in the Bronx.

Then there is the Red Sox factor, which is always in the back of Yankees fans' minds. In five games against the Red Sox, who lead the Yankees by six games in the AL East entering Tuesday night, Lynn is 1-1 with a 1.80 ERA. In two outings this year, he's allowed just two runs in 11 innings of work.

WHAT SUGGESTS METS WILL CONTEND IN 2019?

@JoePantorno

I have no answer to the question in this headline because I don't think anyone really knows why management of the New York Mets believes they can contend for a World Series next year.

On Monday night, ESPN's Buster Olney revealed the Mets are not looking to rebuild, despite that possibly being the best course of action. It's why the team did not trade star pitchers Jacob deGrom and Noah Syndergaard at Major League Baseball's Jul. 31 deadline. Zack Wheeler, who received the most attention on the market, was not dealt either.

Instead, management believes that this team is a legitimate threat in Major League Baseball

The Mets did not trade any of their blue-chip talents like Jacob deGrom, Noah Syndergaard or Zack Wheeler. GETTY IMAGES come 2019 and opted to keep its core intact.

I understand the idea. Trading away your two best pitchers, one who is a Cy Young candidate this year, would relegate the organization to another miserable stretch like the one had from 2009-2014.

Playing in New York, the biggest sports market in the world, that's unacceptable.

What also is unacceptable though is the way this team has been handled over the past few seasons.

You can focus on injuries as much as you want. The Mets have had exceptionally bad luck keeping their best players healthy, whether that's Yoenis Cespedes, Syndergaard, Jay Bruce, Todd Frazier and going back further, Wheeler an Steven Matz.

But the penny-pinching Wilpon family, the owners of the team, has given management the impossible task of building a relevant club with improper funds.

At least Fred and Jeff Wilpon don't believe in any sort of accountability as to not make anyone feel too badly. Probably because the blame for this franchise's ineptitude rests solely on their shoulders.

Over the past two seasons, the Mets are 114-151 in a stretch where they were expected to contend for the National League East crown. With the pitching talent seemingly in place, general manager Sandy Alderson, who is currently on a medical leave of absence, was instructed to build the rest of the team on a budget.

Instead of spending like a prototypical New York club to not only fill areas of need but also acquire depth to keep the ship afloat should injuries strike, Alderson was relegated to buying veterans on a budget, whether that was Frazier, Bruce, Adrian Gonzalez, Jose Bautista, Jason Vargas.

Absolutely none of it has worked. Though we are supposed to act surprised and shrug our shoulders when this snakebitten organization is dealt with a laundry list of injuries once again.

It's not bad luck that's keeping the Mets down, it's unpreparedness and ignorance.

The only way the Mets are going to contend in 2019 is if they spend money and acquire legitimately skilled upgrades at first base, second base, third base, catcher, the bullpen and in the lower parts of the rotation. Then go find bargain veterans that can come off the bench should they be needed like what the team did with Kelly Johnson and Juan Uribe in 2015.

What suggests that the Wilpons would allow that to happen this winter though?

Nothing.

So take the organization's claim to contend with a grain of salt moving forward unless the Wilpons sell or receive a windfall of cash.
